What the Tax Rolls Show.

County Tax Assessor Lou E. Heath
has completed his tax rolls, had them approved by the county commissioners, and has forwarded them to the State Comptroller at Austin.

The rolls show an approximate increase of some $30,000 over the rolls of 1920, which would indicate that despite the hard times we hear so much about our people are steadily advancing in their worldly stores.

Land values, of course, is the leading item on the rolls, while money on hand and on deposit amounts only to a very moderate sum. However, money at interest shows up somewhat better and indicates that some of our people,
at least, are on "easy street."

The owners of seven canines think enough of their pets to render them for taxes. The seven canines are valued at $150, or a fraction over $21 apiece. If all the dogs in Hondo carried a similar value the problem of financing both the state and county would be solved.

Altogether the taxable wealth of this county is mounting to huge proportions, and barring the counties in which large cities are located, we doubt if any county in West Texas makes as creditable a showing as does Medina.

Following are the items, and their values, as they appear on the tax rolls:

|--|--------------|
| Land—821,450 acres..... | $ 5,486,180 |
| Town lots..... | 1,080,320 |
| Horses and mules—7,625 head..... | 387,850 |

| Dogs—7 head..... | 150 |
| Carriages, buggies, wagons, automobiles, bicycles, mo- torcycles, etc..... | 378,335 |
| Goods and merchandise..... | 300,970 |
| Manufacturers' tools, imple- ments and machinery..... | 259,100 |
| Steam engines and boilers..... | 200 |

| Telegraphs and telephones..... | 37,790 |

Total values.....$12,528,221
On which a total tax of $31,770.06 will be collected.

Poll taxes to the amount $4,777.50 have been assessed, of which the state's share is $4,095, while the county's pro rata is $682.50.

The state tax rate is 62c, while the county rate is 55c, making a total tax of $1.17 on the $100 valuation. Special taxes voted by the people are not included in this rate.

The average value of the land assessed is $6.68 per acre.

Anyone having money that is burning his pockets can get rid of some of it at the tax collector's office now.
Tax Collector Muennink and Deputy August Hornung are very busy waiting for you to come in and liquidate your indebtedness to the State and county. Occasionally a tax payer strolls in but thus far no rush has been noticeable, only approximately $900.00 having been paid into the county and state coffers up to noon Thursday. E. R. Leinweber was the first to pay up on the north side, while Judge A. M. Lamm holds a similar honor for the side side.

Hondo Downs Sabinal.

"High" Batters Old Rivals by 6 to 0 Score.

If there was any doubt in anybody's mind as to the fighting ability of the High '21 team, that doubt was shattered Tuesday at Sabinal.

Playing against a team that outweighed her by at least 15lbs to the man, Hondo fought her way to victory by a 6 to 0 score. Although the team displayed lots of good playing ability and a vast improvement over their play in the Lytle game, their victory over Sabinal must be contributed to their spirit and bulldog tenacity.

It was a revelation to the vast horde of Hondo rooters that journeyed to the field of battle. All concluded that, although the team may be lacking in some departments of the game, it was nevertheless a nifty bunch, and a nervy bunch deserves everybody's support.

The game was a real battle right from the start, neither side threatening the other's goal during the first quarter. However, Hondo was determined to get the jump, and near the end of second quarter had fought her way to Sabinal's 10-yard line. Tony Windrow then called on "Bob" Bendele to carry the ball around left end and Bob responded by giving one of the finest exhibitions of "stiff arming" and side stepping ever seen. Four Sabinal men took their turn in trying to stop "Flying Bob" and all four failed. Bob kept right on going until he carried the ball over for Hondo's only touchdown.

Everybody cheered and everybody smiled. What a wonderful moment that was—for Hondo. Balloons sailed in the air, hats were flying high over head, while the band played the tune of victory—Hondo victory.

Hondo came out in the second half determined to stay in the lead, and they succeeded brilliantly. In desperation Sabinal began an aerial offensive, but "High" met this by breaking up pass after pass until the final whistle was blown and the enemy had been conquered.

In conclusion let us remember the true sportsmanship and fine playing of Sabinal—a good team, whose outstanding star, McGee, is one the best backfield men in this section of the country—a bunch of fine, clean sportsmen that any team ought to be proud to play with. Worden, Sabinal's left end, should not be forgotten for he played a wonderful game all around and was the outstanding star of the day.

SCORE.

Mrs. Allen is a native of Hondo and ported. Her brother, Henry Merriman, went to San Antonio on this morning's train.

Ulbrich-Newcomb.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W.
Ulbrich was the scene of a very pretty wedding Thursday afternoon when their daughter, Marguerite, was married to Mr. Guy Newcomb of Devine.

The rooms were decorated in vases and festoons of queen's crown and a bower of the flowers was formed at the double door-way. The beautiful gifts were tastefully arranged in the living and dining rooms and a huge bowl of roses sent from San Marcos were lovely in the dining room between flickering candles in crystal candlesticks.

Promptly at five o'clock, to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March played by Mrs. F. S. Cockrell, the couple came in from the entrance and were met at the library arch by Rev.
W. L. Dubose of Devine, who in a few impressive words pronounced them man and wife. Rev. Dubose had also married the bride's parents 21 years ago. After the congratulations, an ice and cake course was served and then the beautiful bride's cake was cut with intense excitement over the ring and thimble favors.

The bride was attired in a traveling suit of taupe duvetyne, with hat and accessories of brown, and carried an arm bouquet of crimson roses. This was taught by Miss Bessie Ernest before the couple drove off amid a shower of rice and old shoes.

The out-of-town guests were:

Mrs. Codey, San Antonio; Mrs. J.
Baily, Mrs. Ulbrich's sister, San Antonio; Mrs. Cook Moore, Mrs. Ulbrich's sister, Devine; Mrs. L. Seuberth, Mr.
Ulbrich's sister, San Marcos; Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Ulbrich, Poteet; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Biry, Biry; Mr. and Mrs.
A. G. Ilse, D'Hanis; Mrs. Newcomb,
Devine; Mr. W. L. Dubose, Devine;
Miss Annie Ulbrich, San Marcos; Mrs.
Marley, Devine; Mr. and Mrs. S. S.
Moore, Crystal City.

Blalock-Rothe.

Mr. Elton B. Blalock and Miss Erna Gertrude Rothe, a young couple from Seco, were married in Hondo about 11 o'clock Monday night, Judge A. M.
Lamm officiating. While the judge,
as a rule, objects to nocturnal visitors,
he is always more than willing to lend his aid to Dan Cupid—provided they wake him up. After the ceremony, which occurred at the home of Judge and Mrs. Lamm, the happy couple, with their attendants, left on a visit to San Antonio.

Miss Erna, the bride, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Rothe, is well known in Hondo, having attended school here and has a large number of friends among our young people, who wish for her naught but happiness and prosperity in her wedded life.

The first number of the lyceum course,
under the auspices of the American Legion, will be given in Hondo on Wednesday, November 9th. Every one will remember the pleasure afforded them by the lyceum entertainment provided last year and will anxiously await the opening number of the coming course.

Hondo's first "Trade's Day" was a success from whatever angle viewed. A large number of people from all parts of the county were present and all seemed pleased at the opportunity of greeting friends. While trading was perhaps somewhat limited, as the general public did not comprehend the real purpose of the day, as an educational event it was all that was anticipated, and now that its purpose is fully understood greater activity in the way of trading may confidently be expected on the future recurrences of the day—the first Saturday in each month.

Hondo was almost a deserted town Tuesday, and had the census enumerator happened along we would have cut a sorry figure in the population column. Even that part of our population that makes it a point to greet every train as it rolls into the depot, was conspicuous by its absence. Big and little, middle-sized, old and young—in fact every one that could find a way—fied themselves to Sabinal for a day at the fair. And right well were they repaid for their visit, as every one is enthusiastic over what they saw, from the fine stock in the corals to the exhibits in the exhibition hall. Sabinal, in her first fair, has made a record that will tax other more pretentious towns to excel, and it is a safe prediction that should she ever attempt another affair of the kind there will be no scarcity of either exhibitors or visitors.

A dual purpose was the cause of the visit of Felix Batot, C. J. Bless, Will Ney, Jack Droitecourt and L. A. Mechler to Sabinal Tuesday. While the fair in progress over there was an attraction, the impelling force that carried them to our neighbor town was to inspect the fight-fighting apparatus of the fire company over there, the gentlemen from here acting as a committee from the Hondo fire department. They found our neighbors well equipped to cope with the fire fiend, and they long for the day when the Hondo fire department will be be similarly equipped.

Old Jupiter Pluvius made a bluff Monday morning. For awhile prospects were flattering for a big rain, but the prospect was about all we got, as but .40 of an inch of rain fell here. However, he was more partial to the people of the northeastern part of the county, a precipitation of some 4 inches being reported from that section. As a result of his flurry, however, the heat has been somewhat less oppressive.

Pains Were Terrific

Read how Mrs. Albert Gregory, of R. F. D. No. 1, Bluford, Ill., got rid of her ills. "During . . . I was awfully weak . . . My pains were terrific. I thought I would die. The bearing-down pains were actually so severe I could not stand the pressure of my hands on the lower part of my stomach . . . I simply felt as if life was for but a short time. My husband was worried . . . One evening, while reading the Birthday Almanac, he came across a case similar to mine, and went straight for some Cardui for me to try.

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

"I took it faithfully and the results were immediate," adds Mrs. Gregory. "I continued to get better, all my ills left me, and I went through . . . with no further trouble. My baby was fat and strong, and myself—thank God—am once more hale and hearty, can walk miles, do my work, though 44 years old, feel like a new person. All I owe to Cardui." For many years Cardui has been found helpful in building up the system when run down by disorders peculiar to women.

Steady Decline Indicated In Rate of Tenancy Increase.

Out of 6,500,000 Farmers 2,500,000 Do Not Own the Land From Which They are Producing Crops.

Eight Southern States Have More Rented Farms than Forty Others. New Census Figures Give "Croppers" Large Acreage — Tract Leases Increase in West.

Although tenant farming still is advancing its lines into American agriculture, its rate of advance is rapidly diminishing. Preliminary statistics of the 1920 census are the basis for this opinion expressed by the United States Department of Agriculture. While the losses in the size of the farm tenant population in 20 States amounted to over 57,000, the gains in 28 States totaled nearly 160,000. Out of 6,500,000 farm operators in 1920, 2,500,000 did not own the land they farmed. These tenants operated 38.1 per cent of the farms of the United States.

The outstanding States for farm tenants were Texas and Georgia, the former with 232,308 and the latter with 206,875. These, together with six other Southern States, contain tenant farms to the number of 1,232,042. In other words, eight Southern States have more tenants than the other 40 States. Probably 600,000 or between 45 and 50 per cent, of these southern tenants will be classified as colored by the 1920 census.

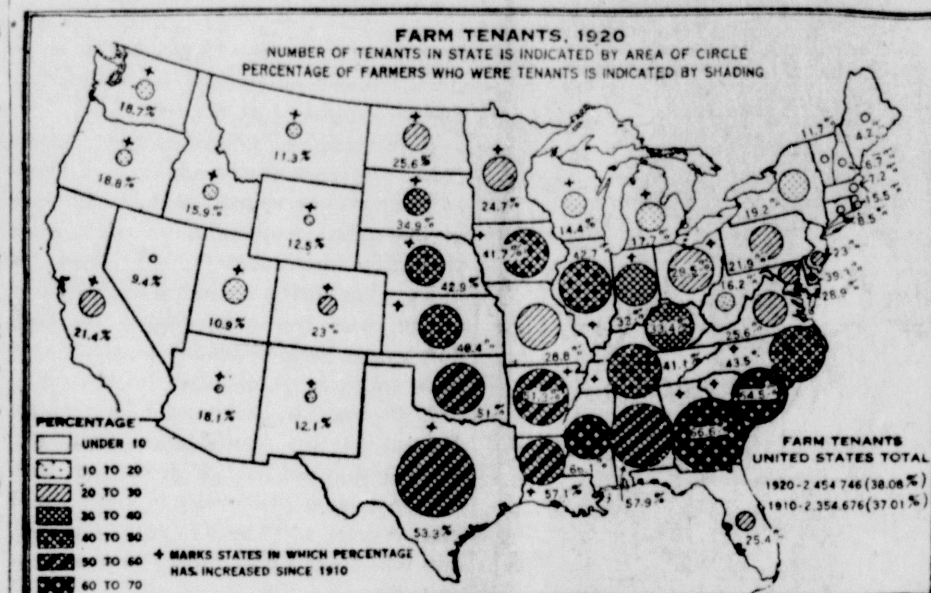

The census of 1920, for the first time, affords a separate classification of tenants known as "croppers." In Southern States with highest tenancy percentages are Nebraska (42.9), Illinois (42.6), Iowa (41.7), and Kansas (40.3). In the South tenancy prevails heavily in the Mississippi Valley and eastward to the Atlantic coast. The northern part of the Mississippi Valley likewise is distinguished for tenant farming, and a significant trend toward tenant farming has appeared recently in the States of the Pacific Northwest.

Where has the tide of tenancy been rising most vigorously and where, if at all, has it been ebbing?

SOUTH DAKOTA LEADS.

In North Dakota, for every 100 tenants in 1880 there were 336 in 1890, 44 in 1900, 696 in 1910, and 1229 in 1920. In an average South Dakota farmer group there are now 729 tenants to 100 as found in 1880. For speed in displacing owners by tenants, the Dakotas outdistance all other States. In 46 other States, however, the owners have given more or less ground to tenant advances between 1880 and 1920. In only two States, New Hampshire and Florida, is tenant farming less in evidence than in 1880. Taking the United States as a whole, the census reports thus far published one finds data on croppers only as found in the 17 Southern States. The census has defined croppers as share tenants whom the landlord furnishes with work stock. The number of croppers in Southern States is reported as 561,005, or 17.5 per cent of all farmers and 35.2 per cent of all tenants in those States. In the eight Southern States, which contain over half of our American tenantry, croppers averaged 38.1 per cent of all tenants. In Mississippi the average reaches 48.3 per cent. On the basis of special investigations made by the Division of Land Economics of the Department of Agriculture it appears probable that croppers were less numerous in 1920 than in many previous years.

Illinois with 101,196 tenant farms, led the States of the North and West, standing well above Ohio (75,644), Missouri (75,727), and even Iowa (89,064).

Of the 14 States with the highest percentages of tenancy, 10 are Southern States in which the percentages range from 41 to 67. The four non-there are now 16 tenants in an average farmer group to 10 forty years ago.

As already pointed out, the rate of increase in tenant farming has been slackening in nearly all parts of the United States. To each 100 tenants in 1880, 20 were added before 1890, 29 in the 10 years ending in 1900, 7 between 1900 and 1910, and only 5 between 1910 and 1920. In the increasing proportion of farm tenanted, 32 States took part between 1880 and 1890, 45 between 1890 and 1900, 25 between 1900 and 1910, and 28 between 1910 and 1920. The two decades that closed the nineteenth century, therefore, closed the period of most remarkable tenant increase in our history. None of the States in the New England and Middle Atlantic groups has shown an increase since 1900, some of them having passed their high-water mark in the eighties. Most Southern States practically completed their transition from the slavery plantation system to the tenancy system before 1900.

TENANCY GROWS IN WEST.

Evidence that there is an approaching balance between tenancy and ownership are not so strong in the Western States. In these States there appears recently to have been a recurrence of the violent rate of increase in tenancy that affected nearly the whole country during the nineties. In most other parts of the country it appears that tenancy has practically reached its peak.

The causes of these changes and the best methods of adjusting landlord and tenant relations to fit new conditions are being studied by the office of Farm Management and Farm Economics on a basis of county statistics and investigations of individual practices on rented farms in the preparation of bulletins in a series now appearing.

BY THE EDITOR.

The Man Who Has Won.

I want to walk by the side of the man who has suffered and seen and knows. Who has measured his pace on the battle line and given and taken the blows. Who has never whined when the scheme went wrong nor scoffed at the tailing plan— But taken his dose with a heart of trust and the faith of a gentleman; Who has parried and struck and sought and given and scarred with a thousand spears— Can lift his head to the stars of heaven and isn't ashamed of his scars.

I want to grasp the hand of the man who has been through it all and seen. Who has walked with the night of an unseen dread and stuck to the world-machine. Who has beaten his breast to the winds of dawn and thirled and starved and felt.

The sting and the bite of the bitter blast that the night of the foul have dealt: Who was tempted and fell, and rose again, and has gone on trusty and true. With God supreme in his manly heart and his courage burning anew.

I'd give my all—be it little or great—to walk by his side today. To stand up there with the man who has known the bite of the burning fray. Who has gritted his teeth and clenched his fists, and gone on doing his best. Because of his love for his fellowman and the faith in his manly breast. I would like to walk with him, hand in hand, together journey along. For the man who has fought and struggled and won is the man who can make men strong.

He wins most who over-comes the greatest handicap!

Did you ever have something you wanted go out of sight while you counted the cost?

The world wastes little time on the man who is merely trying; one must deliver the goods or get out of the way for some one who can.

Out of pain comes surcease, Out of strife comes sweet peace, Out of the night comes rest; What'er man finds is best! Wherefore be thou dister?

As sure as the geese fly southward in the autumn just so surely does the first breath of winter bring a flock of less desirable "birds". Every fall brings to this section an influx of burglars and thugs, the outpourings of the crime nests of northern city slums, and a crime wave is as certain as an epidemic of winter colds. It never fails to come with the coming of winter, and it continues until the rigors of the northern winter have sufficiently subsided to invite their northward flight. Officers of the law, and especially night watchmen, need to double their vigilance, and courts of justice should show no leniency to those caught in criminal acts.

Now that the season for having fires has arrived it is well to look carefully after the flues and chimneys. Most of the accidental fires are caused by defective flues and could be prevented by a little wise precaution beforehand to have seen that they were in proper condition. The loss of property every year reaches an enormous total, not to say anything about the toll uncontrolled fires take of human life. Let your "fire prevention day" be before you have built a fire for the winter. And let your measures of prevention be an examination of the flue that has been neglected all summer. Here is where a moment's thought may save many hours of vain regret.

ECONOMICS students are all agreed that normalcy and general prosperity can not be restored so long as the products of the basic industry, agriculture, are at or below pre war prices and the products of other industries remain on a basis of 150 to nearly 200 per cent above. Either the prices of farm products must go up to a level comparable with the prices of other commodities or the prices of other commodities must come down to the level of prices of the former, before general prosperity is possible. Being heavily involved in debt, it is to the interest of the greater number, obviously, that an advance in the prices of farm products is to be desired.

THERE is much talk going the rounds of the press now concerning the coming disarmament conference. And war-tax burdened people are hoping and praying that something can be done, some plan can be formulated, whereby the mad race of the nations in war preparations may be stayed. In this connection it might be well to remember that England owes this country several billion dollars for loosening the grip Germany had on her throat. England has defaulted in the payment of interest on this debt, not to mention the principal. But England goes on building warships, with no other probable enemy than this country. If England paid her debts war preparations would have to cease for several years. This country does not seek to enforce collection, but goes on building warships in competition with her delinquent debtor. Meantime, with every one fully aware that Japan is preparing for a clash with this country as soon as England dares give an approving nod, we are letting American syndicates sell her material and equipment to construct the most formidable navy in the history of the world. And the only counter steps we are taking is to buy material from these same "patriotic" citizens in an effort to keep in hallooing distance of Japan, in the wild frenzied rush to build warships. Oh! we are a wonderfully wise, self-contented complacent people, don't you think?

The two men first made their horses comfortable, and then cooked some supper on a little fire at the door of the shack. Harris was tired, so they cleared a space in the corner farthest from the door, and spread their blankets there. Harris lay down to rest, the precious bag of money by his side.

"You might as well drop off for a nap," Allan suggested. "They must have been delayed, and may not make it tonight at all. We're here for the night, and you may as well rest if you can. I won't turn in myself until you waken."

"I believe I'll do as you say," his father agreed. "Keep a keen ear and don't leave the building without wakin' me."

Allan looked out at different times for Gardiner and Riles, but there seemed no sound in all the world save the rushing of water. A cold draught crept along the floor. . . . He fancied his father had fallen into a nap. . . . The night chill deepened and at length Allan hung a blanket as best he could across the open door. His gun gave him a sense of companionship, and he took it in his hands and sat down beside his father. . . . It was very lean and graceful in his fingers.

While the banker worked in his garden in the long August evening the thought of the two men with a bag full of money kept recurring and recurring in his mind, and smothering the natural pride he felt in his abounding cabbage. True, it was no business of his, but still he could not feel entirely at ease. As he bent over his hoe he heard hoofs clatter in the street and, looking up, saw the erect form of Sergeant Grey on his well-groomed government horse. At a signal from the banker the policeman drew up beside the fence.

They talked in low voices for ten minutes. "It may be a wild-goose chase," said the sergeant at last, "but it's worth a try." Half an hour later his horse was swinging in his long, steady stride up the road by the winding river.

CHAPTER XI.

The Honor of Thieves.
Gardiner and Riles rode only a short distance out of town, then turned their horses into the deep bush, and waited.

At last the Harris' team and buggy rattled by. When it had secured a good lead the two horsemen emerged from their covering and took a cross road to Gardiner's ranch.

"We better eat," said Gardiner and busied himself with starting a fire. "Of course, the cook's out. Fishing, I guess," he continued, as he noticed that Travers' fishing rod was gone from the wall. "Perhaps it's just as well. He might be asking questions."

Riles ate his meal in haste and silence. He was taciturn, moody, and excitable, and made no response to Gardiner's attempts to open conversation upon trivial subjects.

"Upon my soul," said Gardiner at last, "you don't seem any more than enthusiastic. One would think you were going to a funeral, instead of a—division of profits."

"Perhaps I am," said Riles sourly. "We'll know better when we get back."

"Well, if you feel that way about it, you better stay at home," said Gardiner, with pointed candor. "If ten thousand dollars is no good to you perhaps I can use your share in my own business."

"That wouldn't let me out," protested Riles. "You've got me mixed up in it now, and if things go wrong I'm in for it, but if things go right you're willin' to take all the money."

"Things won't go wrong," Gardiner assured him. "They can't. Everything is planned to a fraction, but if we see there's going to be a hitch—why, the owner of the mine'll fail to turn up, and we'll all come back to town, and no one a bit the wiser."

Riles was eager to know the details of which he had been kept in complete ignorance, but Gardiner would disclose nothing until they were on the road. "Jim may come in any minute," he explained, "and Jim might hear enough to make him curious. And it's just a little too soon to excite his curiosity."

DANGERS OF A COLD

Hondo People Do Well to Heed Them.

Many bad cases of kidney trouble result from a cold or chill. Congested kidneys fall behind in filtering the poison-laden blood and back-ache, head-ache, dizziness and disordered kidney action follow. Don't neglect a cold. Use Doan's Kidney Pills at the first sign of kidney trouble. Follow this Hondo resident's example.

Mrs. Heyo Schweers gave the following statement May 28, 1915: "I had an attack of kidney trouble some years ago. My kidneys acted irregularly and caused me annoyance, and there were other ailments arising from disordered kidneys. I believe the trouble was brought on from a cold which settled in my kidneys. I purchased Doan's Kidney Pills at Windrow's Drug Store and just a short use corrected the trouble which has never returned."

On May 3, 1919, Mrs. Schweers said: "I have had no occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills since they cured me four years ago. My back is now strong and my kidneys act as regular as ever."

revolver here somewhere. I think I'll borrow it. We might see some game, as Allan says."

A search disclosed revolver and cartridges in Travers' trunk, Gardiner loaded the weapon and put it in his pocket.

"What about me?" demanded Riles. "Ain't I got a gun?"

"Better without it," said Gardiner. "It might go off. If we really see any game, and there's a chance of a second shot, I'll lend you this one."

Down by the river, well screened with cotton-woods, Travers fished in a pool close by the ford. He heard voices, and, looking up quickly, saw Riles and Gardiner riding slowly down the road. The two rode close by, and stopped their horses to drink with their forefeet in the river. Jim was going to call to them when he heard his own name mentioned. He was no eavesdropper, but he obeyed the impulse to listen and keep out of sight.

"Travers doesn't suspect a thing," Gardiner was saying. "It's just as well. He figures on making old Harris father-in-law some day, and he might do something foolish if he caught on. If the old man loses all his money he won't be so desirable from a son-in-law's point of view. . . . Well, we'll see how he stands the night in the old shanty up the river road. Strange things have happened there before now, let me tell you, Riles."

If Jim had been prompted by curiosity at first a very different emotion laid hold of him as he caught the gist of Gardiner's remarks. Travers had not known Harris to be in the district, but he had suspected for some days that Gardiner and Riles were hatching mischief in their long absences together. The information that Harris was going up the river tonight, apparently with a large sum of money, and the fact that these two men also were going up the river, gave to Travers' nimble mind framework on which to hang almost any kind of plot.

He leaned forward in the trees, but at that moment Riles clutched Gardiner's arm and said something in a low voice. The two men rode through the river, and their words were drowned in the hiss of the water.

Cotton Prices Should Go Higher.

By GEO. B. TERRELL
Commissioner of Agriculture.

The United States Government Cotton Report issued Sept. 1st, shows the condition of the cotton crop to be 49.3 per cent and the estimated yield to be 7,037,000 bales, the shortest crop in more than a quarter of a century.

Damages from insect pests, and the recent heavy rains and floods may reduce the yield below the government estimate, especially the Texas crop.

| | Bales |
|---|------------|
| Total carryover is..... | 6,499,108 |
| Less 24 per cent damaged and untenderable cotton..... | 1,559,785 |
| Total tenderable cotton..... | 4,939,323 |
| Estimated yield 1921..... | 7,037,000 |
| Total crop and carryover..... | 11,976,323 |
| Or in round numbers..... | 12,000,000 |
| Estimated domestic consumption and exports to August 1st, 1922..... | 12,000,000 |

These figures by the government virtually wipe out any surplus cotton at the end of the present cotton year, Aug. 1, 1922.

The world's production for the crop of 1920, cotton year closing Aug. 1, 1921, was 19,595,000 bales.

The estimated production for the crop of 1921, cotton year closing Aug. 1, 1922, based on last year's yield of all foreign countries, is as follows:

|--------------------|-----------------|
| United States..... | 7,037,000 Bales |
| India..... | 2,976,000 " |
| Egypt..... | 1,251,000 " |
| China..... | 1,000,000 " |
| Russia..... | 180,000 " |
| Brazil..... | 100,000 " |
| Mexico..... | 165,000 " |
| Peru..... | 157,000 " |
| All others..... | 400,000 " |

Total World's Supply 13,266,000 Bales
Or 6,329,000 bales less than that for the cotton year just closed.

With such an unprecedented short crop, the price should advance at least to 25 cents per pound, and if the crop is marketed gradually, so as to give the mills their actual needs and no more, the price should materially advance, and the crop should be held down next year to actual needs of the mills in order to maintain the advance.

A circular has been sent out from Boston to the new England spinners stating that the cost of producing this cotton crop is the lowest in years, and that a price of 10 or 11 cents for cotton will yield a good profit to the producers.

Statistics furnished by the cotton growers of Texas, as to the cost of production, and carefully compiled, show that it cost above 40 cents per pound last year to produce the crop and 25.8 cents per pound this year. If the yield per acre this year had been as much as last year, the cost of production would have been much lower.

The statements in the Boston circular as to cost of producing cotton this year, are deliberate misrepresentations, in order to bear the price of cotton. Every indication points to higher prices, if supply and demand are to control.

850 DISASTER DEATH TOLL FOR ONE YEAR

Red Cross Gives $1,871,000 Relief When 65,000 Families Are Made Homeless.

Forty-three disasters, resulting in the death in the United States of 850 persons and the injury of 2,500 called for emergency relief measures and the expenditure of $1,871,000 by the American Red Cross during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, says an announcement based upon the forthcoming annual report of the Red Cross. These disasters caused property damage estimated at $1,000,000, affected sixty-seven communities and rendered 65,000 families homeless.

The year's disasters were of varying types, including several which previously had never been thought of as falling within that classification. The Red Cross furnished relief in seventeen fires of magnitude, five floods, seven tornadoes or cyclones, one devastating storm, three explosions, including the one in Wall street; one building accident, two typhoid epidemics, the most serious being that at Salem, Ohio, which affected 9 per cent of the population; one smallpox epidemic, in the republic of Haiti; one train wreck, the race riot at Tulsa, Okla.; the famine in China, emergency relief in famine among the Indians of Alaska, the grasshopper plague in North Dakota and an earthquake in Italy.

Pueblo Most Serious

By far the most severe of the disasters in the United States during the period covered by the Red Cross report was the Pueblo flood early in June, 1921. The rehabilitation problem confronting the Red Cross in Pueblo was one of the most difficult in recent years. When the first news of the horror was flashed throughout the country, the American Red Cross National Headquarters responded with a grant of $105,000 for relief work. Governor Shoup of Colorado, appreciating the long and successful experience of the Red Cross in organizing disaster relief work, placed the entire responsibility for the administration of relief in its hands.

In response to appeals from President Harding, Governor Shoup and other governors of western states and through local chapters of the Red Cross and other community organizations, public-spirited citizens brought the total contributed for Pueblo's rehabilitation to more than $325,000.

The terrible havoc wrought by the flood waters is a matter of record. More than 2,300 homes were affected and 7,351 persons were left homeless. Estimates of $500,000 as an absolute minimum for rehabilitation were made by Red Cross officials in charge of the relief work.

Fast Work in Wall Street

The Wall street explosion was notable in that relief workers of the Red Cross were on the scene twenty minutes after the disaster occurred. The race riot at Tulsa also was unique in disaster relief annals in that outside of a small emergency relief fund contributed by the Red Cross, the only relief measures outside the city consisted of the service of social workers, nurses and a trained executive whose object was to assist local forces in directing their own efforts.

In decided contrast with the previous year, only one tornado assumed the proportions of a major disaster. This occurred on April 15, in the border sections of Texas and Arkansas with the city of Texarkana as the center. The significant feature of this disaster relief work was the fact that it covered so much rural territory as to make necessary a large number of relief workers.

The famine in China, necessitating relief expenditures totalling more than $1,000,000 by the American Red Cross was by far the most serious of the foreign disasters in which the Red Cross gave aid.

Builds Up Its Machinery

In connection with the administration of disaster relief measures, an increasing effectiveness on the part of the Red Cross to deal with emergencies was manifested during the past year. In 328 chapters of the American Red Cross there have been formed special committees to survey the resources of their respective communities and to be prepared in case of disaster. In others of the 3,402 active chapters, a network of communication has been formed through which instantaneous relief may be dispatched to any part of the United States.

That its work in this field may be continued with ever greater effectiveness, the American Red Cross is appealing for widespread renewal of membership during its Annual Roll Call, to be conducted this year from November 11 to 24.

LIFE SAVING CORPS ENROLLMENT 10,000

Growth of Red Cross Life Saving Corps throughout the country continued unabated during the last fiscal year, a summary of the year's achievements by that Red Cross Service shows. There are now 180 Corps with a total membership of more than 10,000 members of which 1,278 are sufficiently skilled in the work to act as examiners. Among the outstanding achievements of the Red Cross in this field during the past year was the organization of the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, of what is perhaps the largest life saving corps in the world.

FEET MOST ABUSED MEMBERS

According to English Writer, Only About One-Third of Humanity Walk in Natural Manner.

The human foot is one of the most beautiful and useful instruments ever conceived, but, unfortunately, it is not what a motorist calls "foolproof."

There is a great deal of misunderstanding about our feet. We treat them outrageously, as either custom or fashion may dictate. As a result, about one-third of the population is splint-footed, another third walks like a hen on hot cinders, and the remaining third may be said to walk fairly natural.

The foot has a graceful arch running fore and aft. We take this longitudinal arch, turn the toes outward so that the heels meet at an angle of 45 degrees, and put all our pressure in a straight direction across the arch. No engineer would dream of building a straight arch bridge to carry loads neither across nor along the arch, but irregularly askew over it.

We ought to walk with our great toe pointed straight in the direction of progress, as Indian runners do, and "spring from the great toe." Instead, most of us "take off" in a lumbering sort of way from the ball of the great toe.

The arch of the foot is supported largely by the tendon which runs under the foot to the great toe itself, and this neglect of use renders this tendon weak and lax, and causes depression of the arch. The best care for weak arch is the practice of raising one's self upon the great toe, that is, doing as a penning exercise what you should have done all along naturally. If you will try when walking to keep the feet straight, and to end each stride with a little "spring" off each big toe alternately, you will be rewarded by finding that progress seems easier, quicker and more buoyant.—London Daily News.

QUALITIES THAT WIN SUCCESS

Probably the Greatest Among Them Is That Subtle Something We Know as Personality.

It takes more than mental ability to make a man and more than the qualities that are supposed to make for success itself. It is not so much what a man knows, or his ability in applying it, as it is in what he is himself.

There lurks in some human beings, in overflowing measure, that subtle something termed personality which is likely to carry them much farther than anything else. Probably character, courage and dependability are the three great assets. Theodore Roosevelt in his own biography writes of the two kinds of success, the one being the result of natural gifts, the other being acquired slowly, and adds: "I need hardly say that all the successes I have ever won have been of the second type. I never won anything without hard labor and the exercise of my best judgment and careful planning and working long in advance. I was as a young man at first both nervous and distrustful of my own prowess. I had to train myself painfully and laboriously not merely as regards my body, but as regards my soul and my spirit."—Exchange.

City Largely Built on Piles

A considerable part of the foundations of the city of Venice rests on piles that were driven into the muddy shallows of the Adriatic more than 1,000 years ago. The tallest structure of the city for many years was the campanile or bell tower of St. Mark's cathedral. It was a massive structure of brick which rose to a height of 325 feet, and the piles for its foundation were driven in the year 974. The first campanile was built in 800. In 1329 the foundation was enlarged by driving more piles, and the tower was rebuilt. In 1512 an earthquake brought it tumbling down, but a new campanile was immediately erected. This fell July 14, 1902, owing to the gradual failure of the foundation. New piles were then driven and a new campanile was erected in 1905 on a reinforced concrete foundation.

Ancient Navigators.

The origin of the art of navigation is lost in antiquity, but it is known that it was practiced with considerable skill by the ancient Egyptians and the Phoenicians. From the beginning of the historic period Tyre was the chief city of the Phoenicians, and the enterprise of that people was, from their situation, specially directed to the sea, and they pushed their commerce on it with a spirit and daring which, considering their opportunities, has never been surpassed. They are the first who are known to have steered by the observation of the stars, and who could thus venture out to sea. They ultimately adopted two distinct kinds of vessels, the gaulos or merchant vessel, with a deep hold adapted for storage, and the trireme or ship of war.

Armenian Literature.

Prior to the fifteenth century Armenia's literature is entirely in the form of religious verse and prose. The record of secular events is entirely her saga. The desire for freedom and patriotism is the theme of her old songs, just as her modern literature is the expression of intense struggle against oppression. The period of national greatness, when as a nation Armenia was free and prosperous, is told in songs sung by shepherds, and at feasts.

ENGINE OF PUBLIC SERVICE

Newspaper Today Not, as of Old, the Mouthpiece of Any Individual or Party.

Not so many years ago a newspaper was a printing press surrounded by a group of individuals chiefly concerned in getting their own private theories or doctrines before their readers.

Today the newspaper is an engine of public service. Its success financially and morally is measured by the degree in which it supports not a party but the people.

Those today who have a Twentieth century ideal of achievement separate the newspaper from the individual and make it first and foremost an organ of public service built by the people for the people. The journal which most nearly fulfills its highest purpose is that which is indistinguishable in policy from the natural trend of progress and march of liberty and free thought.

Political prizes were the aims of the old-time editor. His policies were based on his own party interests and he discussed every public question with a ferocity and partisanship proportionate to the reward he expected to get out of it.

The establishment of an institution, a living thing, which represents the public interest and nothing else—that should be the ideal of the editor.

It is this ideal which has made newspapermen a priesthood and has separated them—some of them—from politics. For this age is not a materialistic age—in spite of opinion to the contrary.—Vancouver Sun.

MEANT "DIVISION WITH KING"

"Royalties" in Old Days Signified Something Altogether Different From Meaning Today.

Recipients of royalties from books, patents, mines or any other thing may claim kin with kings, etymologically speaking, at least, for a royalty represented originally the king's portion of the profits of a venture.

The word entered England from France, and was sometimes called a "seignorage." The king of England at the time was the actual possessor of all land in the domain, as he is only nominally today. All mines that were worked, all lands that were tilled, directly or indirectly paid tribute to him. He possessed a similar power, though less clearly understood, over printing and inventions.

The payment of a royalty to an author, inventor or other persons today is recognition of the ownership of the recipient to the basic right in the thing worked or produced. The publisher, manufacturer or operator may have, and usually does have, the heaviest investment, but the man who gets the royalty is the man who holds possession in fee simple, subject to what contracts he may make with those associated with him in the development or distribution of his property.
